DIVERSITY & INCLUSIONS
SPECIALIST

PROFILE

An exceptionally skilled and passionate young South African with over 8 years experience in diversity & inclusion.

Keynote speaker, programme/workshop builder, facilitator & director, D&I strategist and consultant. Passionate about nation building, honest yet tough engagements and social cohesion for the achievement of sustainable organisations and a better world.

South Africa, a country with diverse demographic and social-economic issues, has begun to show the cracks of our divided past. Roy Gluckman believes in conveying a message that is real and relevant to all South Africans. In replacement of the fear, lack of communication and the misunderstanding of cultures, Roy offers a solution based outlook calling for empathy and cohesion. Inspiring others to better understand each other by engaging our differences, as opposed to ignoring them; understanding our pasts and recognising the need to respect one another as equals, thus addressing the general lack of trust amongst South Africans.

Roy, a 29-year-old white male, qualified attorney of the High Court of South Africa, educator, lecturer, professional speaker and facilitator offers hard-hitting motivational and educational presentations. Roy obtained his Bachelor of Business Science degree from UCT in 2009, after which he obtained his LLB from UCT in 2011. Upon completion of his contract of articles at one of the top law firms in South Africa, Roy left practice to spread his message of social education and awareness.

Roy is the founder and director of Cohesion Collective, a diversity and inclusions consulting firm committed to social change and social cohesion
